Abertis, through its subsidiary in France, Sanef, sponsors a great retrospective dedicated to El Greco in Paris. It is the largest exhibition on the artist from Toledo that has ever been seen in France. The exhibition can be visited in the Grand Palais of the French capital from October 16 to February 10, 2020.

The opening of the exhibition will take place this afternoon. The president of Sanef, Alain Minc; the general manager of Sanef, Arnaud Quémard, and the director of the Abertis Foundation, Sergi Loughney, among other authorities, are scheduled to attend the event.

In recent years, Abertis, through its subsidiaries, has sponsored large exhibitions of artists such as Picasso, Dalí, Velázquez and Miró, with a great success of visitors in cities such as Paris, Madrid, Rome, Buenos Aires, São Paulo, Rio de Janeiro or Santiago de Chile.

Currently, Abertis also sponsors the exhibition "Universo Miró", an itinerant display of a selection of works by Joan Miró that goes down different Embassies of Spain abroad, organized in collaboration with the Joan Miró Foundation and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, European Union and Cooperation.

Artistic sponsorship is another example of Abertis' commitment to culture, which works with large institutions on the countries in which it is present, with the aim of making culture accessible to the general public and accompanying Public Administrations in this task.
